STRAY TIPS ON THE DAYTIME DECOLLETE

A Little Square Reveals the New Time-Honored Pointed.

The greatest possible difference exists in the degrees of decollete in outdoor dress. Sometimes the opening is several inches in depth, but more often there is much modification, and a new mode has sprung up in the shape of a small square, revealing a couple of inches of neck, back and front, a single inch at the sides. The gimpes made in this form have half-length sleeves set into cuffs below the elbows. Rows of openwork embroidery trim both front and cuffs.

This openwork embroidery appears also on the front and cuffs of a blouse in striped silk crepon, the collar of which is white satin, with deep points in front and lined with white pongee.

A home dress in washable woolen crepon has the skirt buttoning down the front, a wide collar and revers in striped silk, green, brown and pale blue, with a narrow yoke of the same. Into which the skirt is set in gathers at each side. The sleeves have cuffs in the striped silk, bordered with little lace frills, which fall below the elbows. A pretty blouse in white linen has collar, revers and cuffs in colored voile, green or mauve or blue, with a design of cherries and leaves embroidered to match. All these gowns and blouses have a very small decollete.

A Feature of the Season.

The fashionable cape in some instances resembles the circular cloak of a generation since, with the exception that the fronts are curved upwards, while the back is long enough to reach below the knee-line. One of these, in tomato red satin, has a turndown collar of black moire, lined around the edge with the tomato satin, and fastening at the throat with two large, flat capes covered with the satin. This cape has ample fold, its only trimming is a line of black stitching around the outline. The cut is such that, though the cape is so full around the lower part, there is but little fullness about the shoulders. There are no sleeves.

A Check Cape.

A very original cape of a similar shape to that just described is made of checked silk, the colors being khaki, olive, sage blue and pale amber. The collar is black velvet and the lining is dull green silk. There are very short cape like those that paces wear at weddings, and these are made of satin, with the lining of gold or silver tissue. Some of them slip up the back, cover the arms only, and the sides are frequently drawn forward and fall in pleats in front. Some of them have a small waistcoat of elaborate material attached, or in beautiful Oriental embroidery.

MENU.

Breakfast. Cereal, Fried Tomatoes with Gravy, Egg Muffins, Coffee.

Luncheon. Hamburger Steaks, Fried Potatoes, Biscuits.

Tea Dinner. Green Pea Soup, Croutons, Smothered Chicken, New Potatoes, Asparagus on Toast, Peas, Cauliflower Salad, Wafers, Wine Jelly with Whipped Cream, Coffee.

Smothered Chicken. Broilers and other really young fowls are necessary for this dish. Split down the back when you have cleaned them. Lay them out flat on the grating of your roaster, skin side down, and put into a very hot oven. Cover with a half a cupful of melted butter, and after five minutes heat the chicken with this. Turn them as soon as the inside has colored slightly, baste again with butter when nearly done, and shake with flour and wash again with butter. When they are brown, and the flesh is tender in the joints, they are done. Thirty minutes should be sufficient. Baste frequently, and as soon as they are browned, pour a little hot water to the butter. Take up the chicken and keep them hot. Mix the gravy with browned flour, and boil one minute before serving.

A SAVORY DISH

It has to Be Cooked Just Right, Says French Cook.

A writer in a French newspaper lauds a ragout of veal (or other meat), declaring it is a savory and nourishing dish as any one could desire. It is also said to be a most economical dish for a family, and this is how the French cook prepares it:

She uses about two pounds of the shoulder of veal, which she cooks for twenty minutes or so in a small iron pot, with salt, pepper and butter, until it is well browned. She turns it over from time to time. Once she adds a small wineglass of water to prevent burning. (She is very chary of spoiling good things by water dilution, and in the iron pot there is little danger of burning.) She then sprinkles and stirs in well two spoonfuls of flour—that is, she sprinkles it over the meat and turns the meat over and over; then she adds four large carrots cut into small dice, four onions (aliced), several pieces of parsley, about two cupsful of peas and a glassful of water. She cooks it, tightly covered, an hour and a half, adding, a half hour before it is done, a plateful of small, uncooked potatoes, cut in half. From time to time she stirs it, and the savory steam that arises at each removal of the lid is a promise amply fulfilled when partaking of it later. Other meats than veal can be used, and left-over vegetables of any sort, but what makes it good is the way it is done.

THE BEST WAY

A Quartet of Household Helps Needed in Hot Weather.

To clean children's white kid-topped shoes, rub them with a cloth dipped in milk and then lathered with a good white soap. Rub in well and set in the air to dry. This softens as well as cleanses the kid.

To brighten wilted frames, rub them with ammonia or try the older method of washing them in water in which onions have been boiled, and to which a little sulphur has been added. The sulphur aids in keeping the yellow color.

To remove grass stains from white woollens, use cream of tartar and water or alcohol. Molasses, spread on tomato red satin, has a turndown collar of black moire, lined around the edge with the tomato satin, and fastening at the throat with two large, flat capes covered with the satin. This cape has ample fold, its only trimming is a line of black stitching around the outline. The cut is such that, though the cape is so full around the lower part, there is but little fullness about the shoulders. There are no sleeves.

To clean pewter, wash it with hot water, rub with very fine sand and polish with a piece of leather.

Bridal Brocade.

Silver brocade makes the most sumptuous of wedding dresses.

Black and White.

The ever-popular combination of black and white appears in striped materials, the stripes varying in width from narrow threads to an inch or more in width.

ABOUT YOUR CONTEST. My Dear Girls and Boys, There seems to be some misunderstanding about your contest. It is a "school-closing contest," and I want all of your articles and pictures on the subject handed in by July 1. You may make up stories and poems about it, as well as draw the pictures on that subject, because I think the end of school is still fresh in our minds. Please mark your work for that contest, so that I will not get it mixed with the other stories and pictures, and try to make them just as original as you possibly can. One little girl has written that her school didn't have any commencement.

ment, and may she make it up. Of course she can; you know it takes a pretty more intelligent person to make up a story than it does to simply write down facts as you have seen them. I think we are going to have a grand contest, and anything else that you do not understand just let me know and I will try and explain it.

REBECCA R. COOPER.

THE THREE WISHES.

Once upon a time there was a little boy named Edward. He was a very lively, good little boy. His father and mother were both dead, and he had no brothers or sisters, so he decided he would go out to see the world.

So, singing and whistling, he went dancing along, and jumped over a bush.

PETERSBURG HUSTINGS COURT HAS VERY HEAVY DOCKET

Eighteen Cases Will Go Before Grand Jury When It Convenes in Petersburg To-Day.

PRETTY WEDDING CELEBRATED

Miss Hunter Becomes Bride of Fred Allen Warren, of Durham, N. C. New Dormitory for Normal and Industrial Institute.

The Times-Dispatch Bureau, 5 Bollingbrook Street.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

Petersburg, Va., June 17.—The June term of the Hustings Court will begin to-morrow with both a criminal and civil docket. There are eighteen cases to go before the grand jury, a much larger number than usual.

Pretty Home Wedding.

A quiet, but very pretty, wedding was solemnized at 3:30 o'clock this morning at the residence of the bride's parents, on Harrison Street, the occasion being the marriage of Miss Althea Lee Hunter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cadell Hunter, and Fred Allen Warren, of Durham, N. C. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. E. P. Dandridge, of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, and only relatives and close friends were present. The bride entered the parlor with her father, the strains of "Lohengrin's" wedding march, played by Miss Dorothy Brooke Pleasants, and was met at an improvised altar by the bridegroom, who was accompanied by his brother, Herbert S. Warren, of North Carolina. During the ceremony "O Promise Me" was softly rendered. The bride wore a traveling gown of green broadcloth, and her flowers were lilies of the valley. Mr. and Mrs. Warren left immediately after the ceremony for an extended tour North, and will make their home in Goldsboro, N. C. Among the outside guests present were Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Warren, of Durham, N. C., parents of the bridegroom; Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Warren, of North Carolina; Mrs. E. J. Hellen, of Durham, sister of the bride; and Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Richmond. The bridal party and guests were entertained last night at the residence of the bride. The bride is a young woman of culture and attractive personality, and has a host of friends in this city and North Carolina.

New Dormitory Building.

The board of visitors of the Virginia Normal and Industrial Institute has accepted the plans prepared by Architect R. E. Menden for the new dormitory building to be erected at the Institute. The building will be of attractive design, with fifty-one dormitory rooms and accommodating about 100 students, with a large room on each floor for reading and other purposes. Hids for the erection of the building will soon be called for.

Fourth of July Picnic.

The annual all-day picnic of the Prince George branches of the Farmers' Educational and Co-Operative Union will be held at the county court-house on July 4, and extensive preparations are being made for it. Many North Carolina members of the organization will attend. National and State officers of the union will be among the speakers to discuss questions of importance, and a great crowd of people is expected.

Central State Hospital.

The regular meeting of the special board of directors of the Central State Hospital was held to-day, and the usual routine business was transacted. The board opened the bids for the erection of a new building for patients. The bid of P. J. White, of Richmond, was the lowest, $28,950, and the contract will probably be awarded to him.
